

Our writers love you.
If you love them,
send them money

Quality Lit

This is free. Support online literature and
open source sites.

January 15, 2003, Issue One

Sections

Poetry
Fiction
Reading
Submit
Forums
Front Page

Links

Claire Zulkey
Neal Pollack
Lindsay
Robertson
So New Media
Flak Mag
Hip-Hop
Dead Mule
Opium Magazine
Sweet Fancy
Moses
Smirking Chimp
Black Table

Quality Info

Our Staff
Legal
Good God Why?
Yeah, Thanks

Lesser-Known Drinking Games

by Dave Myers and Claire Zulkey

Bathtub Gin

This is a fun getting-to-know you game that's slightly risqué, slightly dangerous and very unique. Thoroughly grease a porcelain bathtub with Crisco. Fit as many players as you can, nude, into the bathtub, each with his or her own bottle of Bombay Sapphire. Every time somebody laughs, he must drink a shot of gin. Every time somebody says "Whoah!" or "Uh-Oh!" they must drink two shots. Every time somebody breaks a bottle, they must finish the remainder of the bottle of the person to his immediate left, exit the bathtub, and fetch rubbing alcohol. The last person to break their bottle wins.

Drunk in Bed. Again.

A romantic drinking game, "DIBA" is played with couples, Long Island Iced Teas and a king-sized bed. All couples must lie in bed and drink; one sip per minute. The first couple to copulate wins. The first couple to fall asleep loses. (A couple who copulates and then immediately falls asleep is disqualified and is required to 'roll over, roll over.')

Bonus Kings

This is similar to the popular drinking game "Kings," but featuring European rules. Any number of players may play, as they drink cheap beer and turn over cards in a standard deck one at a time, taking turns. Players must follow the rule that accompanies the card they turn over:

- Ace: Sing "The Sign".
- King: Find an Elvis Presley impersonator.
- Queen: Call up a real tough guy and accuse him of being a homosexual.
 - Jack: Eat a flapjack.
 - 10: Eat ten flapjacks.
- 9: Find a Busta Rhymes song that does not involve "Breakin' Ya Neck."
 - 8: Sit quietly.
- 7: Write a thesis report on the fall of communism.
 - 6: Shave your head.
- 5: Speak with a funny dialect.
 - 4: Get a whore.
- 3: Cut down a tree without getting in trouble.
 - 2: Take off one shoe and mow the lawn.
- 1: Drink the rest of the beer while getting all nostalgic about high school.

Next

(c) nhh productions 2003. All rights reserved.

Our writers love you.
If you love them,
send them money

Quality Lit

This is free. Support online literature and
open source sites.

January 15, 2003, Issue One

Sections

Poetry
Fiction
Reading
Submit
Forums
Front Page

Links

Claire Zulkey
Neal Pollack
Lindsay Robertson
So New Media
Flak Mag
Hip-Hop
Dead Mule
Opium Magazine
Sweet Fancy
Moses
Smirking Chimp
Black Table

Quality Info

Our Staff
Legal
Good God Why?
Yeah, Thanks

Lesser-Known Drinking Games

by Dave Myers and Claire Zulkey

Shackey Sarafat

Shackey Sarafat is a derivative of Hackey Sack. The directions are simple and only two people are needed to play. First, get a lime from your lime tree. Any size will do, although the less leaves and branches still connected to it the better, as this adds drag and slows down game play. Put the lime on in the middle of the table. Now take your whiskey bottle (preferably plastic) and pour a glass for you and your opponent. Drink it and repeat. Talk about politics and the end of the world and how smart you are. Remind each other often that you are best of friends and that your brilliance is underpaid and underappreciated. After your equilibrium leaves you, find a large open area. Stand in this area with your feet spread apart for balance and the whiskey in your favorite drinking hand. Face your opponent and ask him if he wants to play Hackey Sack. Show him or her the lime and laugh. Your opponent will say 'Yes'. Throw the lime into the air at about forehead height. Do not move. When the lime falls to the floor, eye your opponent and say, 'Hmm. We didn't do anything.' Then, for wit, add 'Just like Yasser Arafat.' With the proper amount of whiskey in your system, this should sound like 'Jush like yammersarafat.' Laugh for a bit and then play a rousing match of Kitchen Ice Hockey until your roommate awakens and tells you to stop making so much fucking noise. Anyone who forgets to call in sick to work the next day loses.

Too Hot in the Hot Tub

Hot tub is another game for lovers, but for players who are a bit more demure than your average "Drunk in Bed, Again" participants. 1-7 people may play. A bottle of Jose Cuervo must be on hand to encourage 'body shots,' which everybody knows are sexy and wild. The players get in a hot tub and drink the tequila and make vague references to getting naked such as, "It sure is hot in here!" or "Hey there, why don't you take off your pants?" (Note: Players need not wear pants in the hot tub.) The first player to actually coax someone to get naked wins.

Note: For solitary "Hot Tub," a mirror is required. The object of the game changes somewhat, as the goal of the game is to drink tequila and make vague references to getting naked, per the regular version, but victory is achieved once the player no longer feels ridiculous propositioning himself in the mirror.

All potential authors should avail themselves of the Submission Guidelines. Please place "essay" in the subject line.

Previous | Send Us Your Stuff

(c) nhh productions_2003. All rights reserved.